

UNWANTED THOUGHTS

Rezumat: The pervert's attempt at placating the narcissistic wound inflicted by the awareness of the primal scene (the parent's generativity) by turning a blind eye towards reality, establishes a sensuous psychic retreat; by obliterating the reality (the other, the time); the elated phantasy of a regressive narcissistic completion is repeatedly reenacted as an emergency maneuver of repairing a fragile self assaulted by paranoid and depressive anxieties. The triumph over reality in order to placate the pain hinders the maturational process, arrested by the silent destructiveness over the meaning, and postpones the meeting with the other and the time; separation and ageing, pretended not to exist, finally strike as a meaningless void.