

LANGUAGE OF THE "CLASS-HATDER"

Rezumat: This article focuses on presenting a few examples of what we call "the language of class hate" (related to the "wooden language"). During the communist dictatorship, between 1945-1964, the state developed a complex apparatus of repression, called Security, with all its divisions and categories (from the chief of Secret Services to the simple guardsman, from professional executioners to delators). The purpose of this apparatus was the physical destruction of those it ideologically took care of, namely the "enemies of the people", more precisely those who were not regimented in the dictatorship or opposed it openly.
