

HATE AND SOMATIC PATHOLOGY

Rezumat: The experience of hate in the therapy with somatic patients is sometimes beyond the realm of analysis, because the revolts, the excorporation movements and the patient's aggressive and demanding acting out impede the symbolization, the connections and the interpretation of the content that is difficult to be deciphered. From the somatic act to thinking, from expressing hate, from brutal movement to secondary symbolization, the transference-counter-transference relation seems to be "a hand to hand fight" which cannot be spoken, thought, expressed but which must be psychoanalyzed nevertheless.
